This report was completed with the guidance and support of the HealthChoice Evaluation Expert Panel and the HealthChoice stakeholder community. These two groups have assisted throughout the evaluation process and the Department sincerely appreciates their many valuable contributions.

The Expert Panel is composed of a group of health services researchers and Medicaid policy experts that we tremendously respect:

John Colmers, M.P.H.
Marsha R. Gold, Sc.D.
Robert E. Hurley, Ph.D.
Barbara Ormond, Ph.D.
Vernon K. Smith, Ph.D.
Donald Steinwachs, Ph.D.
James Verdier, J.D.

These panel members generously volunteered their time to provide technical guidance throughout the evaluation process. Very early in the process the panel helped us by providing feedback on the pertinent evaluation questions to ask. The panel also played a very important role in reviewing and commenting on the analyses and the conclusions we drew. They served as our sounding board and they have been advisors throughout the evaluation process. We are extremely grateful for their generous contributions of time and expertise.

We would also like to recognize the HealthChoice stakeholder community for its ongoing cooperation and commitment. This community has offered a great deal of valuable feedback on the HealthChoice Program and it has contributed to developing recommendations for programmatic changes. HealthChoice stakeholders have been an integral part of the policy-making process and we greatly appreciate their collaboration and ongoing commitment to improving the HealthChoice Program.

The HealthChoice Evaluation, from initial design, through the extensive analysis and final production, was a collaborative effort of the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene and its partner, the Center for Health Program Development and Management at the University of Maryland, Baltimore County.
